

492c Production of Propylene Glycol from Glycerin and Sugars

Galen J. Suppes, Mohanprasad Dasari, Chuang-Wei Chiu, and William Sutterlin

Hydrogenolysis of glycerin is used to produce propylene glycol. Several catalysts were evaluated and the process optimized. Yields in excess of 90% on a carbon basis were achieved.